A CORRESPONDENT of the Journal suggests that the Auditor refuse to issue licenses to carry on gam. ing on the first floor, for the reason that in counties casting more than fifteen hundred votes gamblers are required to follow their vocation on the second floor. As yet, the officers say they have no official knowledge of the number of votes cast in Washoe county, and the question is, how are they to obtain that information officially? Inasmuch as X. failed to state the proper course to be pursued, the GAZETTE would suggest. that the information should properly come from the Commissioners, the only source from which that information can come officially. Should the Commissioners, by resolution spread upon their minutes recite the fact that such a law exists, that at the last general election there were more than fifteen hundred votes cast in Washoe county, to wit: fifteen hundredand eighty, or thereabouts, and that by reason of that fact the law above referred to is now in force in this county, and then cause a copy of the record to be served the Auditor and Sheriff, would be sufficient notice and grounds for the officers to act of State, with a certified copy of the final ascertainment of the Presidential

CERTAIN Colonel Swords A CERTAIN Colonel Swords comes forward with the startling news 'that he does not doubt that the wine regime of the Hayes Administration will be renewed under General Harrisca at the White House. That regime was conspiced in the senate (this being an entirely new proceeding) as to the disposition to be made of the papers, whether they should be entered on the journal or placed in the archives of the Senate. It was finally referred to the Committee on Privileges and elections.

McPherson said that to his mind the Senate that at a meeting of the Directors of the Missouri Pacific yesterday, dissattended in the Senate. House. That regime was conspicucus as not having included wines or liquors of any sort. . What this same Colonel Swords knows about this question or just how much right he has to speak for the Pres ident-elect and his wife no one says but the probabilities are he is sim' ply another individual who is anxious to get a little advertising out of the late election. Neither General Harrison nor his wife has given any indication of what will be done in this direction, and until they do, no attention need be paid to Colonel Swords or any other colonel. The President's family exercises its pleasure regarding this matter and whether there is wine on the White House tables or not, such fellows as Colonel Swords will probably never nel Swords will probably never necessary have occasion to know from experience.

CONNECTICUT occupies the unique position of being the solitary State in the Union which not infrequently elects a minority Governor. By a peculiar law of the State, even if a candidate receives a plurality of clusion Act, the Department must de the votes cast he can be deprived of the trust by the Legislature. This was the case two years ago, and the same thing is likely to occur this year. At the late election the Democratic candidate for Governor received a plurality of 1,415 votes over his Republican competi. tor. But as there was a Prohibition candidate who received 4.631 votes, the constitution declares that no one is chosen, and the election will thus be thrown into the Legislature which is Republican. As long as the people do not take any measures for amending such absurd legislation they are not entitled to much sympathy.

No one knows whether or not Chauncey Depew has any aspirations toward a Cabinet position, and no one will ever know. When questioned on the subject recently Mr. Depew said: "My position in the next President's Cabinet has already been determined upon and I have received my portfolio. I shall be Secretary of the Exterior."

Witness afterwards promised Sweeney, Mulroe, Fallon and Murphy, all members of the League, that he might assist them in doing away with Lord Mountmorris, but he suddenly missed them. Later in the night he saw Mulroe, who had been wounded in the hand. Mulroe said he had done away with Lord Mountmorris. On cross-examination, witness ris. On cross-examination, witness said he could not swear that there was said he could not swear that there was a branch of the League at Clonbar be-fore the murder. There was some kind of a branch, but it might have been a secret society, the same which witness joined fourteen or fifteen years ago. He promised that he might as-sist in the murder because he did not like to give a hear way but he could like to give a bad answer, but he could not refuse to promise, owing to the oath he had taken.

ting that the scheme may possibly ver a large-sized fraud. To warn the people against approaching danger an of the opinion that this is a false larm. The writer, perhaps, knows a much about the origin of the sup-osed scheme as any one, and to avoid cessary scare will, with your WHOLE THING AWAY. All will remember the abominable ndition of the water with which the own was supplied in the year 1887. Before the trouble was traced to the being reservoir, everybody supposed it was caused by saw dust and other rubbish thrown in the river above the branch of supply. It was during this unpleasant season that the people generally were casting around for some means of relief. The river water being confessed in impure the calls converged confessedly impure, the only source of apply available was that of Hunter rock. To bring that water in, many lans were discussed, and among the lany the one containing the supposed language. BURDEN OF TAXATION. And briefly stated is this: By an Act of the Legislature authorize the people to form a city government upon a an more stable, and yet no more ex plan more stable, and yet no more expensive, than the present town government; authorize the issuance of bonds in an amount sufficient to bring in the Hunter's creek water and distribute it through the city in good shape (then estimated at $150,000), the control and management to be under a Board of Trustees, with nominal salaries, to be elected by the vote of property owners; charge each water consumer a figure not greater than he is now paying; make the charge a lien upon the realty, and to be paid annually into the County Treasury, at the same time and in the sury, at the same time and in the e manner that other taxes are paid. Figuring on the basis of the PRESENT POPULATION, The revenue derived from this source would raise a fund of from $15,000 to $20,000 annually, which would be increased each year in proportion to the increase of population. This, it was claimed, would be sufficient to pay inclaimed, would be sufficient to pay in-terest on bonds, running expenses, etc., and leave a respectable margin each year for the gradual redemption of the bonds. By this co-operative plan, as it was called, the city would own and control its own water supply, and in a few years pay for it without any citizen realizing that it had cost him a cent.

NO WIDEAWAKE CITIZEN Will undertake to make extensive improvements upon a farm in this country with his water supply under the control of a private individual or corporation; nor can any city grow great without controlling its own water ply. This plan may not be the best that could be suggested, but it is at least worthy of serious discussion. Neither this plan nor any other can be adopted unless sanctioned by the peo-

Reno, December 5, 1838. DANIEL SULLY. The Noted Comedian to Appear in

"Daddy Nolan." The best evidence of the merit of Dan Sully's latest creation, "Daddy Nolan," is the fact that it had a run of 100 consecutive nights at Tony Pastor's Theater in New York. The humorous parts of the play are particularly bright and the pathetic so artistically inter-woven in the plot that auditors are by turns convulsed with mirth and moved to sympathetic tears.

The entire corps of the New York press dramatic critics is unanimous in accorditing Mr. Sully with investing press trainance critics is unantmous in accrediting Mr. Sully with investing his personations with the same realism for which Edward Harrigan is noted. "Daddy Nolan" will be presented at McKissick's Opera House Saturday evening with the same cast, senic ef-fects and stage comprehenses when ects and stage equipments as when produced in the metropolis of America.

that County Surveyor Bowen, who has just returned from a trip to the northern part of the county, says he saw ern part of the county, says he saw thousands of cattle on his trip, some of which were in good condition, while others are quite thin. Some ranches are fairly well supplied with hav, while others have light crops. Water is scarce all over the country. There is no running water in Quin river, and many of the pools are frozen over. Cattle men are fearful of a hard Winter, but think that, unless we have plenty of rain and snow, the country will dry up next year, and three dry will dry up next year, and three dry seasons in succession will ruin the

TOUCHING OBITUARY.

The Old Cart Mule at the State

The Carson Appeal of the 5th inst. says that on Sunday last, at 36 minutes past 8, the State Prison mule died of old age. The date of his birth is not definitely fixed, but it was long before Nevada was rocked in the cradle of Statehood or the Emancipation Proclamation was issued.

He was rated at 36 years of age, but Jim Townsend and other contemporaneous authors hold him to be ten or twenty years older. He was there doing good service for the State in the Hyman administration, but was not implicated in any of the scandals of that regime; and, although administrations changed, he still held his place by reason of his fidelity of character and habits of quiet and unobtrusive industry. He loved his rocky home, and never, under any circumstances, forsook his oats.

He died mainly from the fact that his front teeth grew to be so long that he could not masticate his food, and ted on bran mash for the las six months.

There was genuine sorrow through building when it was known out the that the poor mule, whose heart had never known guile, had died. His old familiar bray will never more be heard, nor his cheery face poked in at the

The mule in question was hard at work hauling out waste rock during ex-Governor Crossman's time, which would make him at least 30 years old.

The Union Pacific Evidently Mend

ing this War.
The San Francisco Bulletin of the 5th inst. says that "just where President Smith of the Oregon Navigation Company and General Holcomb of the Union Pacific are at present is a matter several local railroad men would like much to know. They were last heard from in Denver and Portland, almost simultaneously, and were then presumed to be heading toward this city in a special car. Since then they have disappeared, so far as telegrams regarding them are concerned. The feeling is that the party may reach this

An Omaha journal, in which city the headquarters of the Union Pacific are located, recently tells of the efforts of one of its reporters to gain in-formation of a definite character re garding the projected Pacific terminus of the line. Ail the officials are very quiet about the matter, but sufficient was learned to confirm all that the Bullctin has published from time to Bulletia has published from time to time regarding the work of engineers of the company in the passes of the Sierras. It was stated in this connection that the plan of the company to build south from Frisco on the Utah Central to Southern California had been temporarily abandoned, because of the cessation of the "boom." It was then decided to secure, if possible, some direct outlet leading into the central part of California, and the work of the engineers all through the Sierras from Siskiyou to Lake Tahoz, has been the result.

CHINESE HEAD TAX

Canadians Tarjving at the Expense of the United states. The Iowa State Register says that the Canadian Government is just now enjoying a considerable revenue from the tax it levies upon all Chinamer who land in British Columbia. It charges $50 to every Celestial who chooses to disembark there, and the income from this source during the month of October alone amounted to over $11,000. If Canada had to keep over $11,000. If Canada had to keep its Chinese visitors and suffer from competition with their cheap labor, it might feel that the $50 was a small compensation for their presence. But very few of them stay long in the Queen's realm. They dote on republics, and have an irresistable yearning to live a while in an American city. So they slip over the border at the first opportunity and take up their residence.

opportunity and take up their residence on American soil. Consequently the Dominion gets the $50 and isn't troubled long with the intruders. The United States would not begrudge its northern neighbors their thrift and its reward, but it thinks that if Canada is going to get $50 for every Chinaman who lands, it ought to keep its pur-chases or else hand over the money. Their Business Booming. Probably no one thing has caused such a revival of trade at Hodekinson's drug store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Conghs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, croup and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Recent Never Take the Horseshoe From The custom of nailing a horseshie over the door of a house or other build-spread over England and the United States, says an exchange, The horseshoe unites within itself three lucky nents—it is crescer portion of a horse, and is made of iron. Popular superstition has long endowed iron with protecting powers. Such powers attached in some degree to most metals, but since in most countries iron has been the metal latest tries iron has been the metal latest worked, it naturally inherits the virtues of the others. The Romans drove hails into the walls of cottages as an antidote to the plague. When Arabs in the desert are overtaken by simoom, they seek to propriliate the Jimus, who have raised it, by crying, "Iron" "Iron!" The Scandinavian exercises the Neckan or river spirits with an open knife in the bottom of his boat or a nail set in reed singing:

"Neckan, Neckan, nail in water!

Do you sink, I fit."

Horses, in the proper mythology of England, were looked upon as luck bringers. In 'Yorkshire' it is still thought that disease may be cured by burying a horse alive. A horse's hoof placed under an invalid's bed is a specific for many complaints in rural districts. "In Ireland," says Camden, "when a horse dies his feet and legs are hung up in the house, and even his hoofs are sacred."

On account of its form, there is no doubt that its qualities anciently ascribed to the crescent have been transferred to the horseshoe. The sferred to the horseshoe. The creatent, the the horseshoe, is semi-circular, and presents two points. From the earliest antiquity ornaments shaped in this way have been popular as preservatives against danger, and especially against evil spirits.

Fighting Officials. The Hawthorne Bulletin of the 5th inst. says: Yesterday morning, in the County Clerk's office, Sheriff Hart and District Attorney-elect Curler became involved in a controversy which culmiinvolved in a controversy which culminated in a fight. Jerry Quinn was the only witness, and acted as referee and bottle holder. Jerry says it was as pretty a mill while it lasted as he ever saw. They fought all around the room, and upset all the ink bottles, spittoons, etc. The referee finally decided it a draw battle. Neither party was hurt much, although some lively slugging was indulged in.

WRECKED IN A STORM.

CONGRESSMAN CUMMINGS REVIEWS THE POLITICAL FLEET.

Many Good Ships Have Been Dis Loss of the Magnificent Iron Clad from Iowa-Schooners, Clippers, Frigates and Luggers that have been Swallowed in the Masistrom.

(Copyright 1888.) Politicians are still recapitulating the casualities of their great quadrennial storm Many of their losses were unforseen and unexpected. Democratic vessels carried a very high insurance. The losses have been correspondingly great. ried a very high insurance. The losses have been correspondingly great. In some localities the storm became a typhoon. Strong ships were thrown on their beam ends, and went to the bottom like lumps of lead. The Congressional sea was stirred to its lowest depths. The wind came from the West, and a west wind is proverbially flawy. A few ships reached portin a sinking condition, but many were either stranded or capaized. The casualties were not confined to either political party. Some fine Hepublican ships went down in sight of Indianapolis, and several staunch Democratic vessels foundered within hailing distance of Washington. Democratic yachts of spiendid promise are no more. Let us look at some of the casualties.

First is the loss of that magnificent Demoratic iron-clad, General James B. Weaver, of lowa. His defeat is really a national calamity. He is a gifted speaker, a man of unquestioned probity, and a genuine champion of the masses. Always in attendance at the House, he is as wary and as watchful as a hawk, especially in legislation where the interests of corporations conflict with the interests of the people, his long term of service has made him an able parliamentarian: He was a leader among the filibusters last winter. Without his aid the bill refunding some $20,000,000 taxes to the states would not have been postponed to the second session. He was the spider who wound the bill giving banks an increased circulation on their capital in the web of Parliamentary Law, and fastened it be youd hope of extrication. Weaver has yond hope of extrication. Weaver has ever been at the heels of the land robbers. He out-Holmans Holman, in his effort to reclaim forfeited railroad grants. Hol-man wants all the lands restored where the rails have not been laid. Weaver goes a step farther. He wants every acre re-stored where the rails were not laid within the time specified in the grant. After the 4th of March the General will write a book on the Supreme Court of the United States. It will open the eyes of the peo-ple by showing how the court has grad-ually assumed power not delegated to it until the very body that created it has been over awed and silenced. For years the General has been collecting material for this book, and no man better knows how to use it. The General won his title on the field of battle. He was once the Greenback candidate for President, and received candidate for President, and received about 350,000 votes.

The second casualty is the sinking of that staunch Democratic frigate, John J. O'Neil, of St. Louis. He has been a picturesque figure on the floor of the House, Although not as handsome as General Wesser he carries pearly as much weight. Weaver, he carries nearly as much weight, Weaver is tall and commanding in ap-pearance. O'Neil is the reverse. Weaver dresses neatly and pays close attention to dresses neatly and pays close attention to debate. John is rather "tacky" in attire, and is attentive only when interested. His thick, black hair, black moustache, and bushy black eyebrows seem surcharged with electricity when he is thoroughly aroused. Four years has he been Chairman of the Labor Committee. Intensely combative in disposition, he is always urging labor legislation upon the Honse. Others have robbed him of much of the credit due him. In debate much of the credit due him. In debate he handles himself grotesquely yet su-perbly. He returns every blow with com-pound interest. Only the boldest Repub-licans venture to interrupt him. ch of the credit due him. In debate

A third Democratic marine disaster is the loss of the trim brig, Henry Bacon of Newburgh. Mr. Bacon is Chairm Committee on Manufactures. He is conducting the investigation into Trusts and and mental vigor. With his florid plexion, round cheeks, blue eyes, broad shoulders, and hald head, he is a conspicuous figure in the House. He is as deliberate in speech as he is in motion. He talks well, and commands the attenion of the House. Mr. Bacon is a son in law of the late Dr. Brandreth. His defeat surprised his friends, but it is more of a loss to his

A fourth Democratic calamity is the foundering of the stout lugger, the Rev. Luther McKinney of New Hampshire. Thrice has he filled the hall of the House with eloquence. His voice is deep and resonant, and his oratory fervid and old-fashioned. His speeches ring like the reverberations of an antique brass mounted cannon. His heart seems to overflow with its convictions. Like most enthusiastic Tariff reformers, he is tall, cavern-eyed, and full bearded. He pays strict attention and full bearded. He pays strict attention to business, and always knows what is going on. New Hampshire will travel long and far before she fluds his equal.

The fifth Democratic catastrophe was the stranding of the quaint hermaphrodite brig, Timothy E. Tarsney of Michigan. In build, length, breadth, and wriggle, Timothy reminds you of an animated horse hair. He has a nose as sharp as a needle, keen eyes, a face inclined to freckles, a little moustache, and straight black hair. He tells the best story of any man in the House, and makes the quaintest of in the House, and makes the quaintest of speeches illustrated by the quaintest of gestures. When in the throes of eloach like the hands of a school boy working a leather buzz-saw. Anou he swings his arms about his head, as though prac his arms about his head, as though practicing with Indian clubs. Words fly out of him like bullets out of a gatling gun, and ideas appear and disappear like bubbies on a stream. No man will be more missed in the House of Representatives. He is a great favorite in Washington. Those who bewall his retirement, however, console themselves with the reflection that his brother has been elected tion that his brother has been elected from a Missouri District. The brother is said to be even more quaint and original than Tim.

The sixth Democratic misfortune was the wrecking of that well rigged schooner, Melbourne H. Ford of Michigan. Ford was a fast sailor, and could point his bow-sprit almost in the eye of the wind. He sprit almost in the eye of the wind. He is a stenographer about forty years old, clear eyed, and clear headed, and as active as a ferret. He is a bright campaign orator, and has made two rattling speeches in Congress. He won his spurs as a statesman in the immigration investigation. The Committee held sessions in New York and Hoston, and was known as the Ford Investigation Committee. Its revelations surprised and astounded the country. The Committee will make its report at the coming session. Ford is a new member, and was one of great promise. A Michigan newspaper has applied to him the infant's epitaph: lace I am so soon done for.
I wonder what I was begun for

It is a misapprehension. Ford is a ma-

It is a misupprehension. Ford is a man of marvellous energy, and Michigan is a mighty uncertain State.

The sixth Democratic mishap is the scuttling of that marvellous Baltimore clipper, Isador Rayner. Long-baired, blazing eyed and feverish, he awoke the Fiftieth Congress by his flery eloquence. As he stood in the aisle, shaking with the intensity of his emotions and gesticulating like a wild man, with his long hair falling over his forehead, and beads of perspiration dropping to the floor, he made a picture never to be forgotten. He might aptly be termed the king fire-enter of the House. Rayner takes great interest in the laborers, and is ever on deek at the call of Powderly's men. He has introduced a postal-telegraph bill, and has forced a favorable Committee report. He is now lying in ambush awaiting an opportunity to spring the bill into the house. When this is done, the fur will fly. Isador will make the supreme effort of his life, and woe he to the man who stands in his way. It is a pity that so interesting a character should be so evanescent.

The asventh Democratic affliction was

The seventh Democratic affliction was the loss of the neat little yacht, Robert J. Vance, of Connecticut. Like Ford, Vance is a new member, and represents a really Republican district. Fitch of New York says that Vance's red head is the light-house of the House of Representatives. Certain it is that Vance is one of the most popular men on the floor. His influence is eagerly sought, when a meritorious bill is in danger. He is a member of the dis-trict of Columbia and Patent Committees. In the fulfillment of his duties he has studied Washington, and what he doesn't know about the city isn't worth know-ing. A deft worker, he protected all the manufacturing interests in his district, before he voted for the Mills Bill. With of Orpheus, he worked on behalf of his constituents. Vance is a favorite with the Texas delegation, and is always a welcome guest at the White House. Good political judges predict that he will take root anew, and reappear in the house with

The eighth Democratic privation was the loss of the pilot boats Timothy J. Campbell and Lloyd S. Brice of New York City. One was struck by lightning and the other swamped. Both did good ser-vice to the party and to the administration. Campbell is the most unique character in the House, and Brice the most retiring and modest.

The ninth and probably worst piece of The ninth and probably worst piece of Democratic ill luck was the utter ruin of the Minnesota fiotilla. It included the vessels Thomas Wilson, J. L. Macdonald and Edward Rice. The Wilson was a torpedo boat of great efficiency. It would sink or float at will. It discharged a dynamite cartridge either below or above water with great precision. The Macdonald was a ram with a sharp cutwater and wonderful butting power. The Rice was a dispatch boat, a model of beauty, elegance and speed. The three were the first Democrats from Minnesota who had appeared in the House for years. All were Congressmen of great promise, Judge Wilson took a leading part in the tariff debate, and introduced the Canadian Retaliatory bill as soon as the President's message was read. The Democrats of the Fifty-first Congress will need him far more than the Democrats of the Fiftieth Congress. Macdonald is a brainy man, but lacks Wilson's confidential relations at the White House. Rice has made less noise, but has undoubtedly worked as faithfully as either Wilson or Macdonald. All, however, have been overwhelmed in the storm, and the Minnesota delegation is again solidly Republican.

Amos J. Cummings.

How Fifty Darkies Lost Their Votes. In the Eleventh Assembly District is a large mass of merchantable colored voters. Usually their votes bring $2 a piece in the Gotham market. This year the Presidential issue bulled prices. The politicians were willing to pay $3, but the sable representatives of corruption and bribery wanted a V for a vote. As the price was refused, they determined to wait until the aser put in an appearance. Late in the day one of Quay's lieutenants drove up toward the polling place and stopped a hundred feet from the election-booths. The spokesman of the crowd thrust his head in the carriage window before the lieutenant could open the door.

"Say, boss, everything has gone wrong down here in this district. Dere's fifty of us good Republicans who hasn't voted yet, and who isn't going to, unless the right thing is done."
"What's the trouble?" queried the lieu-

"The trouble is the money. The fellows here offered us three, and we won't vote for less than five. If you won't give it, we'll negotiate with the Democratic gen-

"Well, I can't do anything for you. I have no money, and if I had I wouldn't put it up anyhow."

As he spoke a second carriage stopped near them, in which was the Democratic aide-de-camp. The ebon vote seller rushed precipitately to the newcomer and got off the same conversation with the exception that the names of parties were re-tion that the names of parties were reversed. The Republican lieutenant suddenly conceived a happy thought and went to his rival's carriage. As he ap-proached the spokesman moved away. "Mac," queried the Republican, "do you want to buy those fifty votes for five

"No; I can't afford it, and I wouldn't want to if I could. Do you?"
"Not much! Will you shut them out?"
"Certainly, with the greatest pleas-

"Certainly, with the greatest pleasure."

Each went to the captain of the district and explained the matter. In a moment the word had been given, and a line of 200 men, Democratic, Republican, Tammany and Labor was formed in front of the polls. As each approached, he was challenged, chaffed, and, after any amount of fun, thrown out by the police, who had been let into the secret. At a quarter of an hour before the polls closed, the strikers got on the line to exercise the suffrage they couldn't sell. As the minutes passed they began to see the joke that was being played, and pandemonium ensued.

ensued.
"Say, officer, we'se want to vote!"
"Policeman, arrest that man. He voted this morning, and I saw him sush!"
"Mister Policeman, I want to put my ballots in, and them white trash are trying to disfranchise me."
As the first of the strikers got within a yard of the ballot boxes, the time arrived and the polis were swiftly closed. Every one of them had been shut out.

A New York state judge who had a kissing case before him sald; "There is no objection, so far as I can see, to a man kissing a girl if she is willing. But you must not do it against her will. She has a right to object, and if she does you musn't do it. Be sure she is willing before you try. If she objects, then take some girl who won't."

This Beats the Average Eastern Shore Yarn all Hollow.

The mystery which surrounds the strange movements of the two sloves owned by Mr John Jones, a farmer living about eight miles from Baltimore, an account of which appeared in the "American," recently remains unsettled.

appeared in the "American," recently remains unsettled.

About a month ago his stoves, one of which is an ord nary cook stove, stunding in the kinchen, and the other a common wood stove such as is seen in nearly every household in the count v, bern to behave in a strange manner—c...ling about the room or turning over on the floor, seem in ly without any human or natural ass. stance. I e flew all over the room, although the stove were abut up ti at, and no plee open where fire or anylung could possibly ese de. The fire destroyed carpets, bed covering, and set the clo. hes of the immates of the room on fire in many places.

At last, although considerably annoyed by these strange occurrences, they attributed the cause to the wood they were burnar, and changed it frequently; but, as it estoves moved just the same, with or wimout fire, they were at a loss what to do, and so brought it to the attention of their neighbors, who could neither stop the movements of the stoves nor explain the cause.

Becently the stove in the string room turned over three times on the floor, and was left lying in that position, and in a few minutes right test and shid clear across the floor. There were five hundred people within filtern feet of it, but, strange to say, not one of them saw it move, as they were in the yard, with their backs to the stove.

the floor. There were five hundred people within filtern feet of it, but, strange to say, not one of them saw it move, as they were at the yard, with their backs to the stove. Hearing a tremendous noise they turned and saw the stove in that position. Recently Mr. C. K. Coulbourne, proprietor of the electric light plant; M. C. O. Melvin, ed. or of the "Record and Gazette" and the "American" correspondent took an electric test battery to discover if there existed any electric disturbances or ground current, and found that there was nothing wintever unnatural or remarkable in this particular. The old lady and the little girl were in the house with us and we applied our battery to them to ascertain if they were charged in any unnatural degree with the electric current, but found that they were not. Although we made an early start to observe the first greetings of the weird and upcanny agent from the depths below, we ound accress of others in advance of us and still coming from every direction.

During the day the wonderful stoves were inspected by over one thousand persons from the lower counties of Maryland and Virginia.

Mr. Jones is a well-known practical farmer.

Mr. Jones is a well-known practical farmer of about 32 years of age and is the owner of one of the inest farms in this section and one of the linest farms in this section and is in every may a thoroughly remained man. He has in his family his mother, a lady of about 70 years, who is also his housekeeper, and a little hired girl 8 years of age. He has resided at his present home for the last eight years, and has used one of the stoves which is at present creating such an acitement, for several years, and has never known anything of the kind to occur before. The stoves certainly move, but how?

The life of a Congressman is not an altogether happy one, judging from the experiences recounted by many of them.

According to the Washington Star, a member from Indiana was, complaining the other day of the variety of subjects his constituents wrote to him about.

He had just received a letter from a woman in his district, saying that her husband had left her seven years ago and asking the Congressman to go to the esking the Congressmen to go to the census office and find his present address. Another, from a fellow-citizen, asked him to write to the American minister at Rome and get him an Italian queen bee. From which it would seem that there

Another Act Required.

Candid criticism is sometimes very use ul to an author.

A New York playwright who had recently brought out a very sad tragedy, asked a candid friend if he had been to see it.

"Only the first act," was the reply.

"And do you think the first act sublime?" asked the literateur.

"Well, yes," was the reply. "It is somewhat sublime, but I think you might have added an act that would have been more so; an act that would have been a benefit to the people of this great city."

And what is that?" was the anxious inquiry.
"The act of throwing the whole thing into the fire. That would have been an act of humanity, a noble act."

Was Talking to the Other Fellow

"Hello, Shorty," said a gamin, looking at a man of about five feet two in front of the Globe building vesterday. "Pon't call me Shorty, you little cuss," answered the man of low stature; "if you do I'll warm your jacket." "Ain't yer name Shorty?" replied the

"No, it ain't Shorty," said the ma "No, it ain't Shorty," said the man.
"Den don't answer an' get mad when somebody yells Shorty if yer name ain't Shorty. I was talkin ter Shorty. If yer ain't the man I was talkin' ter what's the matter wid yer?" said the youngster.
St. Paul Globe.

A New Substitute for Chlorofors A gentleman was observed dozing in a chair of the reading room of a Texas hotel, holding in his hand a copy of a paper. Another party who wanted the paper—for what purpose we cannot imagine—for the ways the covered dozinest. for what purpose we cannot imagine— gently drew away the covered document. The sie-per, however awoke, and still re-taining his hold on the precious document, said angrily:

"I beg your pardon, but I've got this "Yes, I know, but you were saleep."
"Yes, but I haven't finished my nap
yet. As soon as I wake up you can have the paper.

ful, John."

"It did, Maria."

"And the stars were so bright."

"They were."

"I wonder if the moon is so beautiful and the stars as bright now as they were then, John?"

"I presume they are Maria."

"I presume they are Maria."

"Then why can't we swing on the front gate now and look at the moon and the stars and the blue night skies with their fleecy clouds, as we used to do then?"

"We can, Maria, if you want to."

"Then, John, let us go out to the front gate for a while and see if it will seem anything like it used to."

"All right, Maria. You can go out and try it awhile, and if you like it maybe I'll take a turn at it."

But Maria thought him too much of a brute to do anything of the kind.
